JUNIOR FACULTY AND DOCTORAL STUDENT
PAPER DEVELOPMENT WORKSHOP
ON INTERNATIONAL ENTREPRENEURSHIP

Saturday, June 27, 2015 in Bengaluru, India

Sponsored by the Center for International Business Education and Research at the University of Colorado Denver
Co-Sponsored by the Jake Jabs Center for Entrepreneurship at the University of Colorado Denver, ie-scholars.net, and the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada

WORKSHOP OBJECTIVES
• Receive developmental feedback from senior international entrepreneurship (IE) scholars on an IE research paper.
• Receive and give developmental feedback to colleagues on an IE research paper.
• Meet and network with senior IE scholars and colleagues who share similar interests in IE.
• To further improve the quality of IE research and attract junior scholars to IE.

WORKSHOP FRAMEWORK
The workshop will begin with an introductory session led by senior IE scholars. Participants will then be divided into small teams of 2-3 participants, and each team will be led by a senior IE scholar. The senior scholar within each team will provide developmental feedback on each team members’ paper. The workshop will conclude with a panel session of IE scholars, and participants will be given the opportunity to ask questions of the panelists.

SENIOR INTERNATIONAL ENTREPRENEURSHIP SCHOLARS
Patricia McDougall, PhD is the William L. Haeberle Professor of Entrepreneurship and Director of the Institute for International Business at Indiana University’s Kelley School of Business. She is one of the leading pioneers in IE. Along with her co-author, Benjamin Oviatt, they received the 2005 JIBS Decade Award recognizing their article on the early internationalization of new ventures. Her IE research has been published in JIBS, AMJ, SMJ, JBV, ETP, JIE, MIR, SEJ, EMJ, and other popular business journals.

Wade Danis, PhD is an Associate Professor of Strategy and International Business at the University of Victoria’s Peter B. Gustavson School of Business. His research and teaching center on global strategic management, international comparative management, and international entrepreneurship, particularly in the context of emerging economies. His most recent research focuses on international opportunity recognition and the cultural, institutional, and economic factors that facilitate or constrain entrepreneurial activity in different national contexts. Dr. Danis’ work has been published in JIBS, JBV, IBR, MIR, JWB, and EMJ, among others.

Stephanie Fernhaber, PhD is an Assistant Professor of Management at Butler University. Her research on IE has been published in numerous academic journals, including JIBS, SMJ, SEJ, and ETP. She is the co-editor of the Routledge Companion to International Entrepreneurship. Stephanie received her PhD in entrepreneurship at Indiana University.
Marian V. Jones, PhD is full Professor of International Business and Entrepreneurship at the University of Glasgow’s Adam Smith Business School. Her research concerns the international growth and development of new and small firms. Her theoretical contributions reflect temporal and spatial aspects of internationalization, and draw on knowledge, capabilities, and cognitive reasoning theories. With co-authors, notably Nicole Coviello, she has advanced the understanding of IE through theory blending conceptual work, systematic review, and ontological classification. Her work has been published in journals such as JIBS and JBV. Dr. Jones has served as an expert at UNCTAD and UNIDO policy-making conferences. To date, she has successfully supervised 11 PhDs and examined a further 14.

Becky Reuber, PhD is Professor of Strategic Management at the University of Toronto’s Rotman School of Management. Her research focuses on the growth strategies of new firms, particularly their internationalization. She is the Area Editor for IE at the Journal of International Business Studies, past Associate Editor of Family Business Review, and serves on the editorial boards of the Journal of Business Venturing and Entrepreneurship Theory and Practice.

Ivo Zander, PhD is the Anders Wall Professor of Entrepreneurship at the Department of Business Studies, Uppsala University. He has conducted extensive research on the dynamics of regional agglomerations, technological renewal of multinational corporations, and entrepreneurship. His current research interests include the organizational dynamics of start-up firms, corporate entrepreneurship, and the entrepreneurial dynamics and consequences of accelerated internationalization.
